Six days FDP on Advances in electric vehicle design and development

PROGRAMME OBJECTIVES

Date: 21-11-2022

This FDP aims to explore the research potential and challenges of Advances in electric vehicle design and development Application which have become very popular in the research community in recent years.

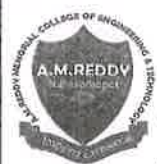

The objectives of this FDP are:

1. High-capacity lithium-ion batteries are the heart of electric vehicles, providing the energy required for propulsion. Advances in battery technology include improvements in energy density, fast charging capabilities, and longer lifespan.
2. Efficient electric motors play a crucial role in driving electric vehicles. Innovations in motor design and materials have resulted in more powerful and compact motors.
3. Power electronics systems, including inverters and converters, are responsible for efficiently managing the flow of electricity between the battery and the electric motor, improving overall vehicle efficiency.
4. These systems capture and convert kinetic energy into electrical energy during braking, increasing the vehicle's energy efficiency.

Five days FDP on Resent trends and advances in RS &GIS for agricultural applications

PROGRAMME OBJECTIVES

Date: 10-03-2023

This FDP aims to explore the research potential and challenges of Resent trends and advances in RS &GIS for agricultural applications Application which have become very popular in the research community in recent years.

The objectives of this FDP are:

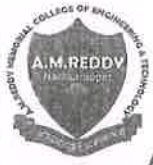

1. Understanding the Basics: To provide participants with a solid understanding of the fundamental concepts of RS and GIS as they relate to agricultural applications, including data acquisition, analysis, and interpretation.
2. Exploring Recent Technological Advancements: To introduce participants to the latest advancements in RS and GIS technologies, such as hyper spectral imaging, LIDAR, and drone-based data collection, and how these technologies can benefit agriculture.
3. Data Acquisition and Pre-processing: To teach participants how to collect and pre-process RS and GIS data for agricultural use, including satellite imagery, ground-based sensors, and aerial surveys.
4. Crop Monitoring and Management: To demonstrate the use of RS and GIS in crop monitoring, precision agriculture, and land use planning, and how these technologies can improve crop yields and resource utilization.
5. Pest and Disease Detection: To showcase the capabilities of RS and GIS in early detection and monitoring of pests, diseases, and stress factors affecting crops, enabling timely intervention.
